Happenings in and Around Bellevue

The day of all days for the Eagles the 21st.

Miss Mary Dunlop was a visitor to Frank this week.

Messrs James and Brivey were visitors in town this week.

Mr. Syd. Lundy has left Bellevue to take up a position in Calgary.

Andy Duncan returned to town
this week after having spent three months in Kentucky.

Mr. Black, of the Evelyn Sales
Co., is conducting a clearance sale at Burnett and Lang's.

Don't forget the Eagles Social on the 21st.

R. Livett and J. Burk attended the meeting of the C. N. P. F. L. at Fernie on the 12th.

The candy to be sold on the 28th at the sale of work is being made by ladies of the town.

Bob Cummings returned from England this week and is back at his old position with the C. P. R.

P. Hesketh met with a slight accident whilst riding. Percy ran against a wire clothes line with his eye and had to visit the hospital for repairs.

It is said that a Gipsy lady has consented to attend the sale of work on the 28th, to tell fortunes.
Good fortunes you know. Come and learn your fate.

We are sorry to learn of the intended departure of Mr. Emmerson and family. Mr. Emmerson has been superintendent of the mines here for about six years and leaves to take up a position in Peru.

On the 28th inst., Madam
Squaw-Lina is expected with her band to attend a concert in the opera house here. The concert will follow the Ladies Aid sale of work and it is to be a huge success from the first. Madam has been given a warm reception all over the States and should give a program never to be forgotten in this town. This visit is a special one and we are informed that the items will not be repeated in Southern Alberta.

The missionary campaign of the Methodist church opened last Sunday night with an address by the Rev. F. D. Jones. The congregation, which filled the church, evinced keen interest in every part of the service and the feeling of brotherhood which prevailed speaks well for the future winter's work.

Next Sunday night the Rev. J.
M. Harrison of Macleod is announced to preach a second session in the series. He is one of the pioneer workers in the West and a full church will no doubt meet him. On Sunday the 27th the morning service will be conducted by Rev. H. H. Cragg and the evening service by Rev. E. A.
Crippin. On Tuesday night following a big meeting will be held to be addressed by a returned missionary. This will be a treat.

6 YEAR OLD GIRL CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Mrs. Alex. Moore, of James St., Oxford, N. S., writes: "Booth's Kidney Pills cured our little daughter, Christine, age six years, of many symptoms of kidney weakness. She complained of a sore back, the kidney secretions were frequent and uncontrollable, especially at night. Her stomach was weak and her appetite poor. This caused her to have frequent headaches, and the least exertion would tire her. We had tried many remedies, but she did not improve. Finally we bought a box of Booth's Kidney Pills and procured a box. In a short time she was well and does not now complain about her back, the kidney secretions having become normal, and she plays around the house with no untoward fatigues. We always recommend Booth's Kidney Pills."

Booth's Kidney Pills cure a guarantee that if you do not have your money well repaid, Booth's Kidney Pills are a specific for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder. Sold by all druggists, 50c box, or postpaid from the R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Laramie, Ont. Sold and guaranteed by S. J. Watson.

BOWSER'S STRAW

Oily Clerk Sells Him a Presidential Panama Block.

FLATTERY DOES THE TRICK.

Pays Top Price and Then Lies About It to His Wife: Exchanges at Barber Shop Cause a Whole Lot of Trouble. Another Exchange at Midnight Makes Matters Straight.

By M. QUAD.
(Copyright, 1930, by Associated Literary Press.)

WHEN Mr. Bowser went to buy a straw hat he intended to invest just $2. He had said to Mrs. Bowser that the man who sold more than that sum was a reckless idiot. When he reached the store and asked for a two dollar hat the salesman looked at him in a puzzled way and then queried:

"It is for your choice, I suppose? Yes, a two dollar hat is good enough for him. Senator, why don't you buy one for yourself at the same time?"

Taken for a senator right off the reel—a taken for a capitalist who could afford an auto and a chauffeur, a man to whom a few dollars was nothing.

Mr. Bowser was flattered. He wouldn't have been human otherwise, especially when the salesman continued:

"I can give you a duplicate of President Taft's Panama. This way, please."

"But I thought—" "Just in this morning, senator, and I don't want the picked gey before you get your choice. Now, look at them. Here are style, wear and dignity. When you see a man wearing one of these hats you can place him at once. Been buying any more autos lately?"

"No-o-o."

"Well, half a dozen ought to be just what you need. Look at them. They say that all you senators keep posted."

"Yes, we do."

"Here's the mate to Taft's Panama, made of the same model. We asked him $30 for his because Uncle Sam has to pay the bill, but in your case it's $25. Examine it. Feel of it. Let me put it on your head. Senator, you never had anything like it."

"I thought of something a little cheaper," said Mr. Bowser.

"Don't, senator. You are as good as Taft. You want something about the common herd. Look in the glass again. Just your fit, and you don't lose a shade of dignity."

Chuckles at His Bargain.

Mr. Bowser thought of what he had said about the reckless idiot, but he also felt that he was cured. He had been mistaken for a senator who had six autos and speculated in Wall Street, and he hated to let himself down. As a result he took the hat. When he reached home and met Mrs. Bowser's accusing eye he said:

"Friend of mine introduced me to the hat, and I got this for $4. I think it's a bargain."

"But did you go and pay $4 for a hat when you knew I hadn't a glove to put on my hand?" she exclaimed.

"I was rather dragged into it, but it looks like a pretty good hat. You shall have some pin money next week."

Mr. Bowser smiled around under that Panama hat. He put the price at $35. He called attention to it. He felt a warm glow when he saw the street car conductor nodding at it. He gave it a rickish salute on his head and felt to pity other men. As he came in to dinner the other evening Mrs. Bowser was not at hand to notice the change of hats. It was only after the meal had been finished and they had come up from the dining room to sit on the front steps that she glanced at the hat tree and exclaimed:

"Why, Mr. Bowser, have you been trading hats?"

"What do you mean?"

"Why, this isn't your four dollar hat. This one never cost the half of that."

"By the jumping Jingo!" he shouted as he grabbed for the hat.

"Of course!"

"Of course it isn't. Some one has taken mine and left this behind. Say, now—"

"It must have been some caller at the office."

"It was. I'll bet a hundred dollars to a cent that it was that infernal Professor Swiggle. Yes, it was. He had crease on his hair and smelt of watergreen. Look on this sweat band, Susie of his."

"But if he made a mistake you can telephone him."

A Loud Smelling Discovery.

"Telephone nothing. I saw him looking at my hat, and I know he changed on purpose. I don't know where he lives. I never heard of him before. He called to see if I was interested in astronomy. By thunder, I'll put him where he can't see stars or planets for the next year!"

"I hope you get your hat back," said Mrs. Bowser, "but don't get too excited about it. Yours only cost $4, you know."

"Four dollars? Four dollars? Why, I plunked down $25 for that hat!"

Twenty-five dollars and that greasy haired astronomer has got it!"

"Well, what are you going to do about it?"

"Do? Do? Why, I'll follow on his trail for the next 100 years. I'll never let it go till I have him in my clutches. I'll go to the police. I'll advertise a reward for him. My twenty-five dollar hat!"

"Which you told me was a bargain for $4."

Mr. Bowser rushed into the telephone and called up police headquarters and stated his case. After he had spent ten minutes giving details the reply was:

"Very sorry, but we are not the straw hat police. Inquire next door."

Then he rushed out to the policeman on the corner. The officer heard the sad tale without being affected. On the contrary, he calmly said:

"Yes, life is full of just such harrowing things, but we must make the best of them. Is there the smell of watergreen myself?"

A rush was made for home, and with a wild hope in his heart, Mr. Bowser went to his bedroom.

"Look here, Mrs. Bowser, I'm not going to threaten you."

"No?"

"I am going to coax you. You may have slipped this old hat on to the peg just for a joke on me. If you did I'll take it as a joke. Ha, ha, ha! It would be quite all right."

"Yes, but I didn't. This is the hat you wore home and hung up."

"Then I'll have the professor's life!"

"I'll double his hands in his shirt, and draw blood!" I'll catch him by the throat, and I'll t-w-i-l-h his brazen head off!"

His Recovered, but His Lie Stands.

All the rest of the evening Mrs. Bowser tried to quiet and console him, but with poor success. Mr. Bowser walked the floor and abused the professor. He walked the floor and planned how to overthrow him. He even went out to the gate with his mind so full of the event that he slipped, the butcher's boy to relate particulars.

"It's an awful case," replied the boy, "but I know something awful. Pork goes up another cent tomorrow."

Midnight had come. Bowser had tossed and grumbled and grunted and snored. Mrs. Bowser was about to go to dreamland when there was a wild ring at the doorbell. Mr. Bowser jumped out of bed and put his head out of the window.

"Does a man named Bowser live here?" asked a man below.

"Yes, sir."

"Is his name in his straw hat?"

"It is."

"Well, I've got your infernal old headpiece here, and I want my own hat. You took mine when we were getting shaved in the barber shop about a week ago. Nice old party, you are."

"Are you Professor Swiggle?"

"Professor nothing! And I don't go round strutting like either!"

Mr. Bowser snatched his domestics and passed out the watergreen hat and received his own, and Mrs. Bowser had nothing to say until he fell asleep again. Then she softly whispered to herself:

"And he came home and said it cost only $4."

Merely an Error of Judgment.

Robinson Crusoe, with infinite patience and industry, had been waiting for the big log and made a huge canoe.

Then he discovered to his chagrin that he couldn't launch it. It was too heavy for him to move. All his labor had been wasted.

"Still," he reflected, "it was only an oversight. It isn't half as bad as Uncle Sam neglecting for twelve years to raise the lighthouse money."

Scorning to ask for congressional aid in this difficulty, he went to work immediately to make a smaller canoe—Chicago Tribune.

Why She Hesitated.

The Vital Question.

Landlady—We have a fine table here, sir.

WHERE SHE LOST OUT.

Story of a Beautiful Young Thing's Idea of a Husband.

There was once a beautiful young thing who said that the man who won her must love her for herself alone.

To be sure, she said, she would like to have a husband who would love her for herself alone. "I love you because you have such beautiful hair."

"It is a sweetie," she smiled, and the beautiful went away disenchanted.

Came the second suitor, who said: "I love you because of your wonderful eyes."

"One of them squints," she laughed, and the suitor went away swiftly.

"I love you because you have such lovely teeth," declared a third visitor.

"They are false," she smiled, disenchanted, and the third suitor went away disenchanted.

"I love you because you have a perfect complexion," vowed the fourth suitor.

"I lay it by the box," she sniffed, and the fourth suitor went and married a grace widow with six children.

Came then the fifth suitor, who said: "I love you because you are you, because of yourself, because there is a soul in you which attracts me irresistibly."

"But don't you like my hair?" she asked.

"It does not especially appeal to me. I never liked that for myself either."

"And my eyes—do you not admire them?"

"They are blue, and my favorites are brown. I love you because you are you, and."

"My complexion—do you not think it fine?"

"It is not smooth, and I have noticed that you freckle easily and your nose turns red in cold weather. That is an immaterial detail, however, for my affection is based on you."

"And my teeth—do you not consider them admirable?"

"They are too small. I am not a man to be awayed by such trivialities. My love is on a higher and nobler plane than."

"Well, you are a horrid, uncompromising wretch, and I couldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth!"

The very idea! If you begin picking faults in me, we are all over. I am engaged, what might I expect of you if we married?"

And the fifth suitor went away and started a business, and the married man who loved her she had the smallest hands he had ever seen.—Life.

How History Is Made.

Hannibal and his staff were picking their way over the Alps on their faithful elephants.

Suddenly a man with a big badge and chin whiskers rushed into the roadway and held up his hand.

"You stop right where you are!" he yelled.

"Why should I stop?" thundered the great Carthaginian—as his mountabout looked the elephant's ear.

"You're excused," the speed limit, replied the man with the star, "an I'm a duly appointed constable, by law."

Hannibal was so overcome by this amusing holdup that he tossed a bag of exorcisms to the officer and, laughing hysterically, rode away.

Later on, however, his indignation overtook his sense of humor, and he proceeded to slant the life out of the constable and his picked veterans, forcing the fighting to the very gates of shuddering Rome.—Boston Traveler.

A Continuation.

A story is told of a deacon in a Dutch church who was given to long wild harangues on whatever subject was up for discussion. At a meeting to discuss an important church matter, having the deacon in mind, a rule was adopted limiting each speaker to five minutes.

The rule was observed until the deacon arose. His five minutes expired in a confused jumble of words, but he was not to be eluded. When the chairman informed him that his time was up the deacon was surprised.

The bell's sharp tinkle caused him to start and frown.

"Am I to understand," he said, "that my five minutes have expired?"

"Yes, deacon," said the pastor, and the audience stirred slightly.

"Then, brethren," said the deacon, "I will throw the rest of my minutes in the form of a prayer."—Lola Register.

"You're excused," the speed limit, replied the man with the star, "an I'm a duly appointed constable, by law."

Hannibal was so overcome by this amusing holdup that he tossed a bag of exorcisms to the officer and, laughing hysterically, rode away.

Later on, however, his indignation overtook his sense of humor, and he proceeded to slant the life out of the constable and his picked veterans, forcing the fighting to the very gates of shuddering Rome.—Boston Traveler.

A Continuation.

A story is told of a deacon in a Dutch church who was given to long wild harangues on whatever subject was up for discussion. At a meeting to discuss an important church matter, having the deacon in mind, a rule was adopted limiting each speaker to five minutes.

The rule was observed until the deacon arose. His five minutes expired in a confused jumble of words, but he was not to be eluded. When the chairman informed him that his time was up the deacon was surprised.

The bell's sharp tinkle caused him to start and frown.

"Am I to understand," he said, "that my five minutes have expired?"

"Yes, deacon," said the pastor, and the audience stirred slightly.

"Then, brethren," said the deacon, "I will throw the rest of my minutes in the form of a prayer."—Lola Register.

OCEAN TELEPHONY.

Talks Across the Sea May Be a Near Future Possibility.

Transatlantic communication by telephone is a promise of the near future. If the new cable just laid between Dover and East Looe, to increase the facility of telephone communication, between France and England, performs the wonders expected of it, some of the difficulties to be overcome in talking across, or under, the Atlantic ocean will be removed.

We already send the sounds of human speech under the water for tolerably long distances. Endless talks with France and Belgium. Telephonic communication over our mainland and islands of the coast is in common use and excites no comment, though our grandfathers would have considered it impossible. The new channel cable is a system of coils which are expected to reduce the distortion of current impulses and make the transmission of speech clearer. If the experiment of the Dover cable is successful, in this system are expected to make an ocean telephone cable a possibility.

It is not conceivable that ocean telephony will be a cheap thing. To talk between Europe and America will likely be an expensive luxury, but there will be occasions when the opportunity to do so will be eagerly seized, no matter what it costs. The ocean telephone, when it comes, will scarcely be a formidable rival of the cable telegraph, for the wires for the transmission of long messages. But it will be still another means of obliterating distance, of overcoming the remoteness of the world, and the consequent lack of mutual understanding which caused many of the international complications of history. Science, working for the improvement of the arts of peace, is doing more to remove the causes of war than the great modern armaments which science has developed for the purpose of nations hostile to one another.

Princess Alexandra Allice Mary is the full name of the little lady whose picture is shown above. She is the only daughter of King George V. of England and has just passed her thirteenth birthday. Princess Mary, as she is commonly called, is just a little girl, despite her high sounding title, and is being educated according to the simple rule that prevail in the English royal household. Her grandfather, Queen Victoria, believed that her children should be reared in strict simplicity, and this system has been followed in succeeding generations. Princess Mary has been taught, among other things, the value of thrift, and is sometimes seen at the postoffice near the palace depositing savings on her own account.

Little Things.

In a small building which was once Peter the Great's workshop in Holland is the inscription, "Nothing Is Too Little For the Attention of a Great Man."

It is curious to note that many things which have turned out most useful for man were their beginnings in some slight accident or discovery. The telescope we owe to some children of a spectacle maker placing two or more pairs of spectacles before each other and looking through them at a distant sky. Their idea was followed up by older heads. Pendulum clocks were invented after Galileo stood observing the lamp in a church swinging to and fro. Gunpowder was discovered from the falling of a spark on some materials mixed in a mortar.

The great results of a steam engine may all be traced to the boy who sat watching the steam which came from the nose of a trottlet. Electricity was discovered by a person observing that a piece of rubbed glass attracted small bits of paper.

The art of printing took its origin from some rude impression on the manuscript of children from letters carved on the bark of a beech tree.

The laws of gravitation were discovered by the falling of an apple to the ground.

A Harmless Ghost.

A stonecutter in the days when men wore knee breeches and wigs one evening wished to add a few letters to an epitaph on a gravestone recently set up. He obtained permission and went with his tools and lantern to complete his task. The churchyard was cold and gloomy, and very soon he lighted

Semi-Weekly Attractions

Brown and his "niggers" put on a tame show in Blairmore on Saturday night last. Their jokes were dry and the small audience refused to laugh.

Clark's moving pictures which were shown in Blairmore on Thursday night were good, clean and interesting. Clark still maintains the name of being the best moving picture man in the business in the Crow's Nest Pass.

If everybody followed the senseless example of some of our citizens, this town would be found in either Winnipeg or Chicago. They consider that no one else deserves interest on their lay out of capital and that even the local newspaper should talk business for them and receive in return the reflection of a smile cast on the big retail houses of the above named cities. Even if Tim Eaton owned all the business blocks on the main street they would feel duty bound in themselves to forward their little orders to some city a thousand miles away. Such a system of rightfulness (if dealing should make one of the most laughable comedy fables imaginable.

Thrift as a National Asset

A remarkable address was delivered before the Employers Association at Toronto a few days ago by S. T. Bastedo, superintendent of Government annuities. The address should be read by every good Canadian and carefully considered. Following is the best of Mr. Bastedo's address.

The day of opportunity on the American continent is passing. The free lands will be exhausted in another quarter of a century. Great cities here, as in Europe, must inevitably mean at times unemployment and suffering.

The fear of poverty must become ever present in many lives, and, where all the direct of poverty is, out age, when the capacity of earning is gone.

There is need for provision to meet the conditions that will come as in evitably as tomorrow's sunrise. To the hundred of thousands of Canadians who are living up to their income, or just a little beyond it, Mr. Bastedo's address should appeal mightily.

The Parliament of Canada has gone a long way to encourage the people of the Dominion to make provision for old age. It has established a Government Annuities system, under which it is hoped ultimately to make provision for the declining years of the great mass of the people.

At 55 years of age or later if preferred the annuity begins, and continues all death. By supplementing its provisions, if it is desired, the money paid to should the depositor die before the annuity begins is returned to him or her relatives with 3 per cent interest. Should anyone begin to pay for an annuity and be unable to keep up the payments the amount is sufficient to provide $50 per year of annuity will be returned when the debt, either reaches the sum of $50 or rather with 3% compounded interest.

The provision is worthy of the encouragement of all bodies of public opinion. The young do not so well understand the shadow cast before by an old age of penury or financial anxiety as those of mature years. They need sometimes to be reminded how that price of good will was Robert Bastedo, looking back over a career of life and extracting a lesson, sadly perhaps, the lines:

"But pleasures are like poppies spread; You seize the flower, its bloom is shed; Or like the snowflake on the river; A moment white, then melts for ever."

Crop is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. It is a disease of a child (the late Hon. C. B. Remondy, many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never been used there. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Sunday School Association

A meeting of the Crow's Nest Pass Sunday School Association was held in the Methodist church at Frank on Sunday afternoon. George Battinson presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and passed. Ways and means as to the best method of extending the work of the Sunday school in the Pass were discussed. Mr. Hamar, the delegate to the Calgary convention, gave his report. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Frank on Saturday, December 2nd, when the general secretary, H. F. Kenny, will be present.

HYOMEI

THE BREATHABLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH

The rational way to combat catarrh is the Hyomei way, viz: by breathing. Scientists for years have been agreed on this point but have failed to get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mei). Hyomei is the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00 and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 20 cents. Obtainable from your druggist or postpaid from The B. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. Hyomei is guaranteed to cure asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds, or grip or refund your money back. Sold and guaranteed by S. J. Watson.

The International Prison Congress

Supt R. B. Chadwick who represented the Province of Alberta at the recent International Prison Congress held in Washington, D. C., states that all past experience confirms prison workers in eliminating as far as possible the vindictive idea from punishment and educating the morally weak or victims to a comprehension of a square deal and to the point of mental citizenship.

"Probation has proved a most powerful factor in the moral reform of adults for too often a man errors in judgment than in intent and the sound advice and kindly help of a probation officer not infrequently is all the needs to steady him on the right path. In the case of children from infancy to ninety-seven per cent re-appear at once to probation treatment."

"The Russian delegate surprised the Congress by reporting that mild sentences in special institutions, correction of physical defects, probation under supervision, removal from bad home surroundings, industrial schools with trade and education department are among the good things that his country is utilizing in the correction and reformation of children."

"The work done among the children of France compares favorably with that done in any other part of the world. France places a delinquent child in the custody of friends or relatives during the time it is awaiting trial. The court claims the right of decision as to whether or not a child is capable or not of discretion and bases its finding on that opinion. In appointing judges to take the cases of juvenile delinquents, they are chosen from among the men on the Bench who have special qualifications for child work. All delinquent children under twelve are provided security and surveillance through a corps of probation officers and a complete system of reporting. A competent individual investigated the home conditions and surroundings of all children dealt with by the Court as essential to gain the true bearings and in order to meet the true needs of the child."

"The unanimous verdict of the Congress was in favor of prevention. Prevention not only retains the earning capacity of the individual and his good citizenship as an asset to the state but saves the heavy expense of his incarceration. Prevention is vigilant in diverting into channels of useful activity the energy which crime would otherwise dissipate. It is safe to forecast that the reform work of the future will follow along these lines. By devoting more thought, effort, time and space to the care and education of children the state is the going out only by the fruitful returns of worthy lives but by the enhanced progress of the nation."

The Department of Neglected Children, Education invites correspondence from all persons interested in redeeming child life, protecting neglected children and providing homes for the homeless.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at school. Children's stomachs and liver glands are an ideal medium to give a child, for they are mild and give a direct effect, and with care give no constipation. Sold by dealers everywhere.

What's in a Name?

The Rochester Union and Advertiser has propounded a question which promises to remain unanswered. It is this:

"Why is it that the boys with the old-fashioned names seem to get to the front? A canvas of the names of candidates for the Government will demonstrate that the boys who were called 'Bill' in their school days are looming up large. There are no Percys or Algernons in this list, and none in sight."

Add why is it, indeed that the Percys and Algernons seem to stay out of politics, and the Bills to get there? Why is it, for instance, that every member of the Dominion Cabinet, except the Minister of Justice and those of French origin, wears the commonest Christian names in the language. Marking back to their schoolboy days, they become Dick Cartwright, Fred Borden, Syd. Fisher, Frank Oliver, George Graham, George Murphy, and no less than five Williams, Bill Fielding, Bill Patterson, Bill Templeman, Bill Puzosky, and Bill King. Nor is the Minister of Justice ever spoken of as Allen Aylesworth. Having a name just a little out of the common, he pays the penalty by being known as A. B.

On the front benches of the opposition sit Bob Borden, George Foster, Charlie Doherty, Bill Maclean, Sam Hughes, Sam Barker, et al. In the Ontario Legislature the leading conservatives bear names quite as democratic. Jim Whitney, Bob Pyre, Joe Resne, Bill Hanna, Art Matheson, Jim Duff, Jim Foy, Frank Cochrane, John Hendrie also such good old testament favorites as are borne by Adam Beck and Isaac Lucas. And Sandy Mackay is the leader of the opposition.

There seems to be something in a name after all. Politically speaking the commoner is the better. To be a Bill or a Jim may not assure political distinction, but certainly nothing but political extinction seems to await most of the men who were christened something unusual.

Miner Killed At Blairmore

The worst accident that has happened at the mine here occurred on Friday afternoon last when Martin Resetz met his death and Martin Lampy came very near meeting the same fate.

They were discovered at about 3 p.m. by A. F. Meade who immediately summoned help and telephoned for the doctor.

The men were soon taken from the mine. Resetz was dead and Lampy was in a semi-conscious condition. The latter was taken to the Frank hospital where he soon revived and was able to get around on Monday.

The remains of Martin Resetz were buried on Sunday and on Tuesday an inquest was held by Coroner Pinckney to inquire into the cause of this accident.

The following jury men were impanelled: J. Gaskel-Smith, Herbert Hargreaves, Walter H. A. A. Sparks, John McDonald and Donald McKinnon. The verdict handed in by the jury men was as follows:

"That the deceased, Martin Resetz, came to his death on the afternoon of Nov. 11th, 1910, in the Blairmore mine by suffocation by going back to his work too soon after shooting and owing to the ventilation being poor. According to the evidence we, the jury, find that the fire bosses of the Blairmore mine have been careless in the performance of their duty. In the first place allowing holes to be latched with wet coal dust, in absence of the fire bosses. In the second place not examining places after shooting. We recommend that the regulations of the coal mine act be more strictly enforced."

Aerial Tramway Is Completed

The aerial tramway at the cement works, which has been in course of erection during the past two months, is about completed and will be ready for use this week. This tramway will be used for the purpose of carrying shale from the side of the mountain to the cement works where it is used in the manufacture of cement. This tramway has been built at a considerable expense but will mean a great saving in the transportation of shale.

Special Services

A series of evangelistic services will be held in the Presbyterian church, Blairmore, every night next week, from Sunday, 20th inst., to Sunday, 28th inst., inclusive. Two services will be held on each Sunday—morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Knight, of Nova Scotia will conduct the services.

Harold Nelson Coming

Harold Nelson's coming to the Coleman Opera House on Saturday and Monday nights next, is of special interest to the theatre-goers of The Pass, will be the announcement of the return of that ever-popular dramatic actor, Mr. Harold Nelson assisted by a company of professional merit, for a term of two nights. It will not only be a play of quality, but it will be something in the way of a novelty as well for Mr. Nelson is producing nothing but the modern drama this season, and more especially plays dealing with Canadian life and characters.

The report that Mrs. Belle E. Crippen has been discovered in Alib is not correct.

New R. C. Church a Credit to Frank

The new Roman Catholic church at Frank was dedicated on Sunday morning last amidst great pomp and ceremony. The Right Rev. Bishop E. J. Legal, of Saint Albert's, officiated. Besides His Lordship, there were present: Rev. Father Lajot, of Frank; Rev. Father P. Heter of Pincher Creek; Rev. Father M. Lepine of St. Mary's church, Calgary; Rev. Father J. M. Salama of the Pigeon reserve.

Rev. Father Lajot heard confessions in the morning from 6 to 7:30 o'clock. The Right Rev. Bishop celebrated mass for the general communion at 7:30 a.m. The dedicatory service commenced at 10:30 a.m. when this new house of God was dedicated under the name of the Blessed Sacrament.

After the open air service was over and the church blessed, about 400 people gathered in the church where the dedicatory service was continued and an able and edifying sermon was delivered by the Right Rev. Bishop Legal.

His Lordship's discourse was full of eloquence and was very interesting from start to finish. He impressed upon the members of the church the duty they owe their Maker and reminded them of the services which the church required of them. The church of God is their best friend. The building of such a grand edifice for Divine worship, said the speaker, is a proof that the people of Frank have faith in things high and noble things. His Lordship congratulated the people of Frank on the erection of such a splendid church and he hoped that the purpose for which it was erected will prosper and that much good will be accomplished in Frank.

In the afternoon at 4 o'clock the Sacrament of confirmation was given by His Lordship
